SHOWING RESERVATIONS INVITED

The Mary and Lee Blair Residence, 1939, Los Angeles

It is so common for real estate practitioners to utilize superlatives in advertising property with words like stunning, amazing and masterpiece that they have become virtually meaningless within the context of real property promotion. For this reason I have carefully avoided their use. Here, the exception proves the rule. With clear conscience I claim the Blair Residence to be a genuine Masterpiece of Southern California's built environment. Following a meticulous multi-year restoration the property reflects a timeless brilliance in terms of siting, use of materials, use of space, suitability to purpose, and fully resolved architectural integrity. The magic of the artists' residence and studio is alive and well, ready to enliven and enhance the life of the next special owner(s) whose needs are compatible with this unique offering. Located in the Hollywood Hills just West of the Cahuenga Pass, the residence is sited for privacy and views of the San Fernando Valley on a carefully landscaped hillside slope, and includes open plan living areas, bedroom, bath, artist's studio and original poured concrete 2 car garage.

RUSSELL JOHNSON, ARCHITECT

SHOWING RESERVATIONS INVITED

Mountain Compound: Sycamore House + Guest House Little Tujunga Canyon Road – San Gabriel Mountains

Set creekside on almost 13 wooded acres in the Angeles National Forest, yet only 45 minutes from Hollywood, the Sycamore House is a close-in retreat from the city. Designed by Los Angeles architect Russell Johnson to be sustainable and be part of nature. An open plan and a wall of glass allow the outdoors to become part of the living space. The house is built of Rasta, an insulating concrete with recycled Styrofoam and steel, and was designed to supersede building code requirements for seismic safety. The building system also provides the benefits of low maintenance, energy conservation and a long life span. The house has 2 bedrooms, 2 baths and a large outdoor deck with spa. Also on the property is a guesthouse, with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths and a two-car garage. The guesthouse was renovated in 2004. The property includes three lots, APNs 2581-009-014, 015 and 016. There are two homes on the lots. The main house has 1,852 square feet with 2 bedrooms and 2 baths. The guesthouse has 2,097 square feet with 3 bedrooms and 3 baths. The guesthouse is currently rented for $2,600 per month.

MY LUXURY RECYCLING VIEW

With Architect Kevin Cozen
by Bret Parsons

Two years after graduating from SCI-ARC, Kevin Cozen received an ultimatum from his first client: construct the home you designed for us or we scrap the project. Cozen quickly opened Classical Progression and has since created a dramatic array of luxury “recycled” homes and commercial projects. The Santa Monica-based firm is known for deftly fusing architectural salvage and recycled building materials with innovative construction techniques and building technologies to create timeless environments. His family’s Malibu home is a virtual case study of the firm’s philosophy. After connecting with the feeling of weathered equestrian buildings in France, Cozen designed the residence to recall a rustic French barn. The façade is composed of stone and concrete walls, steel windows, recycled doorframes, wrought iron balustrades, and a reclaimed-wood pivot door to create a theatrical entrance. Inside the Great Room, discarded bowed trusses support the roof, while an Ionic column, cast-concrete fireplace, eclectic furnishings and decorative objects lend character. From the concrete floor to the antique furnishings, every component was layered by Kevin and his interior designer wife Carolyn to achieve an imaginative and comfortable haven in which to reside.
